DA to Prosecute Capital Murder Suspect

Harlem Lewis will stand trial for 2012 Christmas Eve murders of a police officer and a good Samaritan

Harris County District Attorney Devon Anderson will try her first capital murder case since taking office in September.

"I am honored once again to represent the great State of Texas in the courtroom as we seek justice for Corporal Jimmie Norman and business owner Terry Taylor," said DA Anderson. "Because of my respect for the integrity of the process, I will not be commenting on the trial until it has concluded."

According to court documents, Harlem Lewis shot and killed Bellaire Police Corporal Jimmie Norman and Terry Taylor, a bystander who had to come to Corporal Norman's aid, on December 24th 2012. Lewis was true billed by a Harris County grand jury for the murders.

Evidence will begin on July 14th, 2014 on the 20th floor in the ceremonial courtroom. 351st District Court Judge Mark Ellis will preside. Assistant District Attorneys Craig Goodhart and Anna Emmons will be trying the case with DA Anderson.
